RADKA'S REPORT ON CON - CON

The committee chairmen have been making progress reports to the convention. They continue to review the second of the constitution that concern their committee and listen to the experts who are called in to speak and be questioned by committee members.

The Friday, November 3rd session was stormy. The controversy arose over the recommendation of the administration committee to hire one Charles Ferry as an assistant research assistant to Stuart Kirvan, the asst. director of public information. The basic objection was that Ferry would be biased since he had recently served as public relations man for the Oakland Co. Republican Committee. The appointment recommendation of Ferry was approved by a 94-37 vote.

Ink White, the capable chairman of the Public Information Committee, called a committee meeting following the stormy session. We met Stuart Kirvan and research assistants Charles Perry and Edward Walsh. Theodora Gay, the third research assistant, was not present. The three men pledged their best efforts to their important jobs and Ferry explained he would let his work performance be the answer to certain delegates' fears that his work would reflect partisan bias.

I gave the staff their first job by asking and receiving a format for a five delegate panel TV appearance on WTOM-TV at Cheboygan.

WTOM's news director, Jack Pratt, arranged and very capably moderated the delegate panel on November 3. We understood that it was a "first" for this form of a Constitutional Convention TV report by the area delegates to the people and might well set a pattern to be followed in other parts of the State.

On 5 November, I appeared with delegates Donald Habermehl from Alpena, Carl Super from Petoskey and Edward Shanahan from Charlevoix at Posen for a District 13 VFW Rally. VFW posts and their auxiliaries were represented from Traverse City to Alpena and Kalkaska to Mackinac. The most gratifying part of the work of the Constitutional Convention are all important if the work of the convention is to succeed.

The Unemployment Racket . . .

Elections, government spending, the destinies of political parties, as well as the future of liberty and self-government, are critically involved in reports released periodically by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics dealing with unemployment. These reports are accepted as gospel by nearly everyone. And yet, according to a recent article in Reader's Digest by James Daniel, they are far from a true measure of unemployment.

Definitions and methods used by the Bureau to obtain its figures have steadily been altered to magnify the unemployment problem. To an increasing extent, persons are being classified as unemployed, even though they are not out of jobs on account of "economic factors beyond the individual's control."

Some indication of the extent to which unemployment statistics in this country have become distorted, may be gained from the following comment of Dr. Seymour Wolfbein, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Labor: "If we applied the same measuring rod as Europe, our unemployed would be three million." (Instead of over 5 million) By contrast, if Britain used our system, according to a recent study reported by the First National City Bank of New York, the unemployment figure would double.

Former Budget Director, Maurice Stans, in urging a "study in depth" to discover how many of the reported unemployed actually are in the market for jobs, warned that, "Modern governments are so heavily dependent upon statistics in making decisions that more and more national policies of immense importance for every American are determined by them. Billions of our dollars now ride on the accuracy of our monthly unemployment report."

The worse the unemployment figures can be made to appear, the easier it is to push Uncle Sam into new federal spending programs and new controls over the economy.

The Alternatives . . .

Living within one's income is something of a problem to most of us. But we have to do it—if we want to keep out of the bankruptcy courts — even though it means doing without many things we'd like to have.

It's high time the federal government took note of this simple truism.

The government has lived within its income just six times in the last 30 years. It is more than $290 billion in debt — and that debt is an obligation against every man, woman and child in the country. It works out to more than $1600 per capita now, and more deficits, which will build the debt higher and higher, are foreseen for the future.

What will the results be? There are several alternatives. We can have higher taxes, or more inflation, or both. Or we can abandon the ruinous welfare state philosophy, and cut non-essential government spending to the bone.

held in the hands of the au-

This meeting was called to discuss the proposal of Mr. Stillwagon to Mr. Schulze that the Chamber support the efforts of the Winter Sports Board of Directors in producing the '62 Winter Carnival. President Schulze outlined the request to this Board of the work and support needed. Mr. Alef told of the thinking of Mr. Bill Harrington regarding the Queens contest — localizing the queens invitations, limit the banquet, eliminate the cocktail hour, ask for donated rooms for the queens, etc. Generally condensing the whole program and making it a less costly affair.

Mr. Alef told of the proposed Saturday sanctioned ski-meet to be held by this office and to be signed by the Chamber perform. Mr. Schulze ordered a letter written to Mr. Stillwagon specifically stating those things that were to be handled by this office and to be signed by Vice President Latusek.

Membership was discussed and the Board were shown that some two thirds of the membership had paid their dues. The applications of the two new members, Sandman Motel and Kaiser Lakeside Resort, were passed and accepted with thanks.

A report was made on the progress of the Roadside Association, made up of Grayling and the towns North along US-27. The strip maps are nearing completion and are ready for the printers but are being held pending the disposition of numerical designation of the old US-27 North of Cheboygan. Also a change will have to be made on this end because it was just recently noticed that there is no US-27 from Grayling six miles South.

The Board were informed of action of other towns on signing the new I-75, and a picture was shown of the Alma sign board and its location. The Board asked that Jack Calkins of American Outdoor Displays be brought in for conference regarding our problem.

Motion by Alef and seconded by Wolff that all bills be paid except that of E.M.T.A. which was to be held until a financial report could be made.

The Manager was instructed to pass on to Marge Roper the hearty appreciation of the Board of Directors of her management of this office during the absence of the Manager.

Motion by Schulze and seconded by Bond that this meeting be adjourned at 6:05 p. m.

Barbara Joan Longdyke became the bride of John L. Glorio in a late September wedding. St. Gerards Church, Detroit, was the setting for the double ring ceremony, performed at eleven A. M. by Monsignor Federa. Altar boys were Charles Stimac and John Harvey.

For her marriage the bride chose a gown of chantilly lace, featuring a sabine neckline, pearl insets in the bodice, long tapering sleeves and a scalloped hemline. A pearl tiara with crystal droplets held her fingertip veil in place. She carried a cascade of baby mums and stephanotis with a symbidium orchid in the center.
Mary Glorio served as honor attendant and bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack Still, Miss Joanne Longdyke and Mrs. Thomas H. Robinson. Their dresses were turquoise organza over taffeta, full skirts, velvet midriffs with matching velvet bolero jackets. Their hats were velvet wimseys with eye veils and they carried cascade bouquets of turquoise and white baby mums.
Sheryl Still, in white organza and turquoise velvet bolero jacket was the flower girl, carrying baby mums, and Dennis Glorio was ring bearer.
Mr. Glorio was attended by his brother, Elmo Glorio, as best man, and the ushers were Jack Still, Gar Blight and Robert Glorio.
The bride's mother wore an aqua chiffon sheath dress and a white child corsage. Mrs. Glorio's dress was bluish pink brocade on chiffon. Her corsage was a lavender orchid.
A breakfast for the relatives was held at LaSalette Hall in Berkley, immediately following the ceremony. In the evening the Hall was the scene for the reception of four hundred guests. Music for the evening was by The Continents, headed by Angelo Benicigno, son of the Groom's Godparents.
Barbara chose as her going away outfit a cup and saucer suit of turquoise wool and a silver sequined capelet, matching hat and black accessories. She wore the orchid out of the center of her bouquet. The happy couple honeymooned in New York City and toured the Northeastern States.

The groom just recently was called to return to the Armed Forces, he is stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas and the bride hopes to join him soon.

The Used Car Gamble

F. C. Wolch

A reputable dealer of my acquaintance has an effective way of dispelling the doubts of his cautious used car customers. He does it by simply explaining his "basic business principles."
"Neither of us can be absolutely sure at this moment that this car will perform as we believe it will," this dealer explains. "But the difference in buying from us is that we are here to make it right if it doesn't."
I know of no percentage figures on the subject, but it is a safe assumption that fully half of the used cars "traded in" to dealers are in need of impending repairs of one kind or another. That is one of the fundamental reasons their owners decided to trade in their vehicles.
But even an expert appraiser can be fooled in evaluating a car's condition by faults that just don't show up in a mechanical check or a ride around the block. They may show up only when the new owner has put several hundred miles on it. If the owner bought the car without regard to the dealer's reputation for integrity, that may be several hundred miles too late.
To take the gamble out of a used car bought from Wolch Motor Sales, Inc., we have five operating principles to protect you: we never knowingly re-present a car to be something it is not; we never retail taxi cabs or police cruisers unless specified; we never sell cars which have been in a major collision or cars "bought cheaply"; the name and address of the former owner is available on request.

AT THE PRIMARY ELECTION

Monday, November 20

HUBBS KNOWS DISTRICT—

LEWIS T. HUBBS has become well acquainted with the 28th District, having campaigned vigorously during the 1960 campaign for the office of State Senator, and again in 1961 for Delegate to the State Constitutional Convention.

He knows the people—he knows the problems of the district, and is best qualified to see that this district is properly represented in the State Senate. He seeks to serve, and has pledged that, if elected, all people of the district will find him available to discuss with them their ideas and problems.

NOT SEEKING RETIREMENT—

LEWIS T. HUBBS is a young man, 38 years of age. Vigorous and active. He is not seeking this office as a retirement post, but as an opportunity to serve the people of this district. This district needs strong, active representation in the State Senate. HUBBS can provide this kind of representation.

SEES NEED FOR ECONOMY—

HUBBS has repeatedly stated that he believes that Michigan government must practice practical economy—that money should not be expended for state services of questionable need—that before new and higher taxes are resorted to, that every effort must be made to eliminate waste, and unnecessary services.
